

Ward Name: North End District

Motto: "Bounty of the sea, loyalty of the earth"

Colours: Blue trimmed white

Device: Device: Azure two chevronels between three anchors Argent. Originally, the North End arms were blazoned "Gules two chevronels Argent". After the construction of the Naval Arsenal, three anchors were added. The change of the field to Azure came after the Marilenev rebellion, when the North End (prevalently Thyatian) population sided with Duke Stefan (contrary to the other wards).

Patron: St. Lucor

Overview: This is a mostly residential section of town; many people who work as servants within the city or as seasonal labourers in the surrounding Estate of Marilenev live here. Many active adventurers also settle here, due to its proximity to the Merchant District, the Foreign Quarter, the Docks, and a number of taverns and inns. Among these inns are Desmond's Dive, The Gored Ox, the Hart and Harrow, and the Black Heart Lily.

Lesser Merchant District – This isn't a district for lesser merchants; it's just the smaller of the two merchant districts in town. Because of its proximity to the Foreign Quarter, this is the district to come to for exotic foods and crafts; though smaller than the other merchant district, it has a much wider range of goods. [GAZ1/K:KoA]

Seafarers' quarter (sailors, shipwrights, carpenters); many adventurers as well. Mixed population, with many New Karameikans and Thyatians. Rough but straightforward people, epitomizes the New Karameikan spirit. [agathokles]

Demographics: Population: c6,000 in 64 blocks
Thyatian and New Karameikan mainly

History: For many centuries the area on the lower slopes of The Hill that is the modern North End district was farmland supplying the settlement and trading with others.. The Great Droughty of AC590-600 threatened the farmers here and across Traladara. In order to prevent further droughts from affecting the local farmers, in AC613 Guildmaster Petros Radu has an irrigation channel dug to provide a steady supply of water to the North End. However, by AC700 the town has turned to the sea for most of its trade, and isolated itself from the rest of Traladara. As the Mirror Bay docks grow into a major seaport, the eastern part of the North End area transforms from open land to buildings that support the maritime industries, with residential blocks appearing in the western half of the district. In AC 929 as the North End is now a residential area, the irrigation channel is filled to provide space for the Lesser Merchant District and Westron Alley. By AC1000 the ancient farmlands have been reduced to a small area in the north western corner of North End.

Buildings: About 75% of the North End's buildings are residential. There are a variety of commercial outlets notably in the Lesser Merchant District and in the Grand Market area that extends from Bricktop. Other commercial operations are found in the south eastern corner of North End, near the docks, providing support for the naval and maritime operations of the harbour. Some other businesses may be found on the streets separating North End from the neighbouring wards (Merchant District and Bricktop). The market areas house many semi-permanent stalls, but there also numerous permanent market structures (some for storage of the temporary daytime carts, etc. and others for well-known traders who have gained an appropriate licence from the Town Council.
